Document Framed For New Mexico Contains 20,000 Words. Santa Fe. N. M., Nov. 22.—The con-stitution for the state of New Mexico framed by the convention which has just closed, contains 20,000 words or 130 sections grouped into 22 articles.

Probably no other American con monwealth ever was confronted with the peculiar difficulties that faced the constitutional convention when it as sembled. Paramount, despite repeated denial, was the race and language

Some 135,000 inhabitants of Spanish American descent demanded protection of their equality before the law and retention of their ancient rights and privileges. The initiative was rejected in fram ing the constitution, but a referendum clause was included. It enables 25 per cent of the voters, on petition, to sus pend a law within 90 days of a legis lative session, and 10 per cent of the voters, on petition, to submit a law passed by the last legislature to a popular vote at the next election.

Prohibition and local option were excluded, but the way was left open to the legislature to deal with these questions. A stringent anti-pass section was adopted. The constitution provides for an elective judiciary from
